Fisher Home Ransacked By Two Burglars

Night Watchman Bound While Thieves Search Thru House Two Hours

PARMA—With Leo A. Fisher chairman of the State Highway Commission, and Mrs. Fisher vacationing in Hawaii, two men tied up the night watchman, S. S. Baker, and spent two and a half hours ransacking the palatial plantation home of the Fishers Tuesday night. The exact amount of the loot or what it included had not been definitely determined this morning but it included just about all the silverware valued at several thousand dollars, it is reported.

Mr. Baker told Sheriff Jim McDaniel of Stoddard County and State Patrol officers that he had just completed a round of the gin and other buildings and gone into the gin office about 10:30 p.m. He had taken off his gun, he said, and laid it on a nearby desk when he noticed two men walking alongside the gin. He started talking to them when suddenly one of the men pulled a snub nosed pistol, put it against his ribs and forced him to accompany them to the house.

There they told Baker, after he told them he didn't have a key to the house, that they didn't need one. They used a bar to pry open one of the big sliding glass doors to the patio on the west side of the residence and then, after tying up Mr. Baker, proceeded to ransack the entire house. Every closet and drawer was searched in the apparent search for valuables or money. After two and a half hours they left carrying two big sacks filled with silverware.

Mr. Baker was unable to give anything but the vaguest description of the robbers. That they were professionals who had carefully planned the job and come prepared to do it was quite evident according to the State Patrol.

Each man wore long gloves and carried big sacks to which straps were attached so they could be carried over the shoulder. They also had a bar to use in prying open doors or drawers.

It is believed they had a getaway car parked nearby as there were tracks of two men leading to a spot on the road where a car had been parked.

SUBDIVISION SAFARI —Deep in the heart of the thick brushland that borders the east edge of Sikeston, Standard staffer David Blanton, Jr., yesterday took what is believed to be the city's first "subdivision safari." The newspaperman, aimed with a 60-caliber Mangum masher, ventured into what Marian Street inhabitants call one of the most dense subdivision domains in the world. In the above picture, Blanton takes aim on what he believed to be a huge man-eating Tiger perched in a tree on one of the vacant subdivision housing sites. The newsman's heavy hunting garb caused him to miss this shot, but later in the day he bagged one of the largest jungles animals of the modern world (See Page 10). Chief of Police Arthur Bruce said today that the owner of the subdivision site where Blanton stalked his big game would be "cleared" August 1. —Staff Photo by Halbach-Kellett.

Tells Of Thrilling Hunt In Dense Domain —

Standard Staffer Kills Rhino On Safari Thru Sikeston Subdivision

By David Blanton, Jr.

The sun was just over the vast SEMO rise as it painted the camp in tones of African pink and spread into the jungles beyond.

With excitement in my heart and fog in my brain, I aroused myself to the coming hunt, dressed in typical khaki, donned my sun helmet, and set about the camp. First to the tent where Arthur was sleeping with his headphones, then I made my way to Earnest, who was sleeping with someone else.

By this time the camp was a stir of activity; Arthur was talking, Ernest was drinking, and the guides were scurrying about shouting 'Bawana". After the cup of coffee that is often found on safaries, I again returned to my tent, being careful not to step on the Black Mamba snake that was always outside my door, picked up my trusty pocket-knife and gun, and returned to the camp fire.

The air was now filled with the smell of the wilds and the garbage cans, and the jungles beyond seemed to beckon, so we loaded the porters. Mumu carried my typewriter, Oomoo carried Arthur's ukulele, Booboo carried Earnest's hairy chest, Mayoomoo carried the toil-

U.N. Security Council Rejects Russian Charges Against U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Security Council debate on the American RB47 reconnaissance plane shot down by the Soviets ended Tuesday night with a 9-2 council vote rejecting Soviet charges against the United States and a Soviet veto of the U.S. proposal for an international investigation.

The Soviets also vetoed an Italian proposal that the International Red Cross contact the two surviving crewmen of the American plane, who are being held by the Soviets for trial as spies.

Despite the official impasse, U.N. diplomats chalked up the outcome as a defeat for the Soviet Union and a victory for the United States. They pointed out that on all three resolutions the vote was 9-2, with the Soviet Union and Poland opposed by all nine non-Communist members of the council including Ceylon and Tunisia, which usually abstain from voting on cold war disputes.

The vetoes brought the Soviet total to 89 in the council's history.

Chief U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said the Soviets by blocking an investigation showed "they do not believe their own charge" against the United States. He termed the Italian proposal for the Red Cross to contact the captured fliers a "compassionate resolution."

He told the council: "It is a sad thing when a people as warm hearted as the Soviet people is represented by a government as cold-hearted, brutal, hard and cynical as they showed themselves to be tonight."

The Soviets had charged that the RB47, when shot down by a Soviet jet fighter July 1, was on a spy mission over Soviet territorial waters in the Barents Sea. The Soviet resolution that the council rejected would have condemned the United States for aggressive acts and called on it to cease such activity.

Lodge earlier in the debate said the plane was investigating electromagnetic currents in arctic waters for mapping purposes and that it never came closer than 30 miles to Soviet territory.

In a last-minute counterattack, the U.S. delegate produced a picture of a Soviet TU16 jet bomber with electronic reconnaissance equipment under a wing and said such planes had been flying off the Alaskan coast for years. He exhibited a map showing six such flights in 1959 and 1960.

Lodge also charged that the Soviet trawler Vega last April 26 made a vain attempt 105 miles southeast of Cape Cod to pick up a "loaded test vehicle" that the nuclear submarine George Washington had just shot from its Polaris missile ejection system.

Veep Nixon Confidently Awaits Repub Presidential Nomination

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago (AP)—With an iron grasp on its every significant activity, Vice President Richard M. Nixon awaited today the Republican convention's nomination as its presidential candidate.

Around the fringes of this unprecedentedly controlled party meeting dissident voices cried out in the political wilderness against a Nixon-dictated platform and his prospective choice of a running mate.

But behind his legions of delegate votes Nixon had the solid, still glamorous figure of President Eisenhower.

To roars of thunderous applause, Eisenhower told the convention Tuesday night that his administration had "employed the whole might of our military, economic, political and moral strength to prevent war and to build a solid structure of peace."

Then, in passing the baton of GOP leadership to Nixon, his specially trained vice president, Eisenhower added: "if we can be blessed with experience and steady leadership in Washington, the possibility of the outbreak of future war will be minimized and we can eventually win the peace."

Nixon was in full command of a convention as perhaps no other nominee-to-be except a White House occupant ever has been.

In the past a few outgoing presidents like Theodore Roosevelt and Andrew Jackson have controlled conventions, dictated their nominees, and had the final word on platforms.

This convention listened to and cheered President Eisenhower. It might bend somewhat to his wishes. But because of the two-term limitations imposed upon a president for the first time, he could not threaten or entice the delegates. He could only try to persuade.

So it was Nixon who wore the general's stars for the first time. It was Nixon who told the platform committee what to do. It would be Nixon who chose his vice presidential running mate.

Although he put off a final decision until after his own nomination, the odds were very heavy that Nixon will pick telegenic Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., the Soviet-baiting United Nations ambassador, to run with him.

Nixon summoned a score or more of the party's leaders to meet with him in his hotel suite tonight on the vice presidential choice. That made it almost certain the convention will not act on that until Thursday.

There remained the outside

'WALK MIDDLE ROAD'

Comparison Of Repub Adopted C-R Platform

CHICAGO (AP)—Here is a brief comparison between the civil rights plank adopted by the Democratic party and that approved by the Republican Platform Committee for submission to the party's convention tonight:

VOTING — Democrats pledged use of full powers of existing law to secure ballot for all. They promised to support action to eliminate state literacy tests and payment of poll taxes as requirements for voting.

The Republican plank also pledged use of existing law to end discrimination at the ballot box. But it pledged legislation to provide that completion of six primary grades in state accredited schools is conclusive evidence of literacy for voting purposes.

EDUCATION—Democrats promised to use full powers—legal and of good faith compliance with the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision. They would give local school districts until 1963 to submit plans for first-step compliance with that decision.

The Republican plank pledged use of the Civil Rights Act of 1960 to prevent obstruction of court desegregation orders. It proposed legislation authorizing the Justice Department to bring actions for school desegregation in appropriate cases, as when economic coercion or threat of physical harm is used to deter persons from going to court to establish their rights. It rejected the Democratic proposal to give school districts three years to submit plans for beginning integration.

EMPLOYMENT — Democrats promised support of legislation to establish a fair employment practices commission to help end discrimination in employment. They

STATE LEADERS SAY NIXON WILL CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI CITIES

CHICAGO (AP) — Missouri Republican leaders say they expect Vice President Richard M. Nixon to make two campaign speeches in their state, and perhaps a third.

Nixon greeted the Missouri delegates to the Republican national convention at a reception Tuesday and told them he needs their help on a precinct basis.

"The delegates are glad to have a candidat for president who knows something about working on the precinct level," said Richard A. Erickson of Kansas City, delegation chairman.

State party Chairman H. Kenneth Wangelin said he received indications from Nixon's headquarters that the vice president will make campaign appearances in Kansas City and St. Louis.

There is also a possibility, Wangelin added, that Nixon will speak in St. Joseph —"one of the best places in the country he could make a farm speech."

At a picture - taking and handshaking session with Nixon, many delegates wore big buttons identifying them as supporters of Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves for the vice presidential nomination.

None, however, attempted to sound out Nixon on his vice presidential choice.

Curtis said his name wouldn't go before the convention if there is no open contest for the No. 2 spot.

"If Nixon wants to get it over with, I'll abide by that," Curtis said. "But if he wants to see who has strength among the delegations and throw it open, my name will be offered."

Curtis, Missouri's lone Republican House member, received a unanimous vote at Sunday's caucus as a first ballot favorite for vice president.

Wangelin reported no change has occurred in the delegation's caucus decision to cast 23 of the state's 26 votes for Nixon as the presidential nominee.

The caucus vote will stand as the delegation's record on the presidential nomination if Nixon is chosen by acclamation, Wangelin said.

Ike Urges Repubs To Ignore Gutters

CHICAGO (AP)—President Eisenhower today urged Republican candidates to follow "the great middle road" and ignore the gutter, left or right.

Eisenhower held forth to Republican office-seekers at a party breakfast the philosophy of Abraham Lincoln that the government should undertake only those things that the people are unable to do themselves.

"We ought to see it as a flaming battle flag on the highest mast the Republican party can put up and fight for it always," Eisenhower said.

This approach to government is difficult to defend, the President added, and requires intelligent explanation or will be attacked from both flanks.

'But that is exactly what we have to do," he said.

The Republican party possesses great strength, however, Eisenhower said, "because so many people want to go in exactly that direction."

Eisenhower addressed a breakfast meeting of his own Cabinet officers and GOP candidates for various offices. About 600 attended the affair, in the Morrison Hotel.

It was Eisenhower's last scheduled appearance in this convention city before heading with Mrs. Eisenhower for Denver, where he will spend the rest of the week.

"In the operation of any great human organism," Eisenhower told his fellow Republicans, "constructive plans and programs must be developed in what we call the great middle road."

The President said most people instinctively "grow to like the paved highway stretching before them and they understand that here is where human progress is achieved."

He said "we are truly a middle of the road party." By that, he added, "I don't mean walking just a wishy-washy path—not at all."

Eisenhower said there are those who insist on 'marching in the gutters, the extremes of the right and left," but he declared that they "in the long run are always defeated."

He set forth this goal: "You must find the broad highway and you must ignore the gutters."

In the Republican party, he said, he found few, if any, "who are in the gutters."

The President was acclaimed in a manner he'll never forget when he arrived Tuesday.

A throng of about one million roared an exuberant welcome and showered the President and his wife with confetti, ticker tape and gay balloons.

Tuesday night the Republican delegates and their guests cut loose at Convention Hall with a thunderous ovation that obviously touched the President and Mrs. Eisenhower deeply.

It was a sentimental journey back to Chicago for the President and his wife. As they stood arm in arm on the platform, smiling and waving, their thoughts inevitably went back to a July day

Party Platform Ready For OK By Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — A broad, 10,000-word Republican platform with a sturdily rebuilt civil rights plank is ready for expected GOP convention approval tonight.

Prospects of any floor battle faded as most GOP chiefs indicated they would accept the compromise worked out Tuesday night by the platform committee on the touchy racial equality issue. The compromise was voted 56-28.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, due to wear the party's presidential mantle, was described as satisfied with the completed platform product. Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York echoed the reports after visiting Nixon early today.

Further along in the wee hours, New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller added his endorsement to the revised plank, calling it "a strong and specific declaration in support of equal opportunity, human dignity and the supreme worth of the individual."

Both Rockefeller and Nixon had described an earlier platform plank as unsatisfactory. Rockefeller said he would like to have seen even the new plank go further in some respects, but said he was gratified with the revision.

"The plank is comprehensive," he said. "It attacks discrimination in voting, housing, schools, jobs and public facilities."

Southern delegates, claiming a victory in keeping civil rights policy declarations as moderate as possible, said they had no desire to kick up any convention fuss.

G. Harold Alexander, Florida Republican chairman, said after a meeting of 10 Southern state chairmen he does not expect a minority report to go before the convention.

The platform, in a nutshell, adheres to traditional GOP conservatism in fiscal and economic policies, commends for continuation the tenets of President Eisenhower's administration, but promises to provide any increased national defense expenditures found necessary.

The final defense plank represents a considerable revision from an earlier version also sharply criticized by Rockefeller. The original consisted primarily of a pledge to continue Eisenhower policies. The final plank calls for accelerated missile production and new weapon development in an intensified defense program.

On civil rights the GOP platform comes close to matching the pledges made by the Democrats. Some Republican pledges go further, such as one to sponsor legislation to end membership discrimination against Negroes in labor unions if the unions don't do it themselves.

Faubus Scores Smashing Win In Dem Ballot

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus was on the high road to an unprecedented fourth term today after a smashing victory over four opponents in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Faubus, central figure in the Little Rock integration crisis, faces Republican opposition in the November general election, but Arkansas has not elected a GOP governor since Reconstruction days.

Returns from 2,158 of the state's 2,328 precincts showed: Faubus 201,364; Joe C. Hardin of Grady 51,729; Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett 50,108; H.E. Williams 28,205, and Hal Millsap Jr., 8,148.

Incumbents won renomination in both contested congressional races. Rep. Dale Alford of Little Rock got a heavy vote in late returns to beat State Sen. Robert Hays Williams and Rep. Jim Trimble of Berryville trounced Donald Poe of Waldron.

The vote in 174 of 228 precincts in the 5th District showed: Alford 24,200, Williams 19,717.

This was Alford's first campaign in a Democratic primary. He won his first term as a write-in candidate against party nominee Brooks Hays in the 1958 general election.

In the 3rd District, 472 of 503 precincts gave Trimble 46,602 and Poe 16,632.

Arkansas' four other congressmen and Sen. John L. McClellan had no opposition. Their names were not on the primary ballot. They are automatically certified to the general election as Democratic nominees.

Faubus campaigned on his six-year-record and segregation was a minor issue, compared to 1958, when Faubus talked of little else.

Ike Defends Administration On Defense and Economic Growth

CHICAGO (AP)—President Eisenhower says it is "irrefutable truth" that the nation is enjoying unprecedented prosperity, has the strongest military system in the world and is working ceaselessly for peace.

He gave this assessment of his years of stewardship in the White House to an enthusiastic "Thank You Ike Day" session of the GOP National Convention Tuesday night.

Especially in the fields of national defense and economic growth, Eisenhower strongly defended his administration's record. At many points his speech struck at the Democrats, but he could as well have been speaking of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller when he said:

"Just as the Biblical Job had his boils, so we have a cult of professional pessimists who, taking counsel of their fears, continually mouth the allegation that America has become a second-rate military power.

Eisenhower, who is nearing 70, received a warm 'we like Ike" reception from the GOP delegates, whose party rode to power with him nearly eight years ago after two decades of being on the outside.

The President, as he has before, came up with a dramatic challenge to the dictator in the Kremlin.

Would the Soviet dictator, Eisenhower asked, "agree to holding of free elections under the sponsorship of the United Nations—to permit people everywhere—in every nation and on every continent, to vote on one single, simple issue?

"That issue is: Do you want to live under a Communist regime or under a free system such as found in the United States?

"Are the Soviets willing to measure their world prestige by the results of such elections?

"The United States would gladly do so."

The President listed a string of achievements on the domestic front, defended the administration's conduct on foreign affairs, and said "there are more Americans today employed, at higher wages and with more take-home pay than ever before in our history."

Some authorities have compared the motorist driving along a strange route to a man in an isolation chamber. He is cut off from almost all commmunication with the world around him. Only traffic signs convey information he needs to reach his destination, conform to laws and regulations, avoid hazards and stay out of trouble.

This is especially true at night, when the hazards are greatest.

Traffic authorities estimate that there are some 50,000,000 traffic signs and markers on the nation's roads and streets.

The average motorist is likely to take the traffic signs pretty much for granted, until someone he knows gets hurt because a needed sign wasn't there, or its warning message could not be seen. Only then do drivers realize how completely dependent on traffic signs they and all the other motorists are.

Traffic experts know the importance of signs and have done much to make them better. They devote many hours of scientific study to putting the right sign in the right place and to making signs as easy as possible to see and understand.

They use distinctive shapes and colors to distinguish the various types of signs and, working through national associations and Federal authorities, have established uniform sign standards, to speed recognition by motorists from all parts of the country.

However, in many areas as many as 50 per cent of all signs, particularly on the older roads and streets, are not suitable for the job they are supposed to do. At night the percentage may be even higher.

With limited money and manpower, and hundreds of miles of roads and thousands of signs to maintain, most local authorities welcome the assistance of motorists in keeping signs in first-class condition. Here are two things you might do to improve signs where you drive:

1. Check the signs in your neighborhood. Have some signs been knocked down, or become bent, mutilated, dirty, faded or in need of repair? Are they obscured by parked cars, or are they mounted where they can be seen easily? Are they illuminated or made of reflective material so they can be seen at night, as well as by day?

2. If you find something wrong with the signs in your neighborhood, report them to the local traffic official responsible for signs. Most local safety councils and automobile associations provide a clearing house for such information and will be glad to help your efforts to keep signs doing the important job they are supposed to do.

AN ELEMENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

One provision of the Taft-Hartley Act authorizes the states, if they so desire, to enact right-to-work laws—laws that prohibit union shop contracts under which men and women must join and pay dues to the union, whether they want to or not, in order to hold their jobs.

Nineteen of the states have passed these laws. As a result, the AFL-CIO started an intensive campaign some time ago to persuade Congress to repeal this Taft-Hartley provision. That campaign was a flat failure, and has, apparently, been totally abandoned.

Now, reports The Wall Street Journal, the AFL-CIO has a new strategy. It will work in the states in efforts to get the laws repealed at the same level. Top labor leaders, the newspaper goes on, have approved a plan to fight for repeal in three states as of now and to survey five more to determine if the effort should be made.

The AFL-CIO has every right to do this, just as it has every right to carry on its many other political activities. But those who see right-to-work in a different light also have the right, and the obligation, to fight for their side of the controversy. In many instances, labor's legislative successes have resulted from the fact that there was no organized and effective opposition. The labor strategists had things all their own way. They'll continue to have it their own way if business and other groups shirk the elemental responsibilities of self-government.

Will Rogers was entertaining the cadets at West Point with Gen. Fred W. Sladen, the superintendent of the academy, seated in the front row of the balcony. Twirling his rope, Rogers drawled:

"I've been visitin' you fellas in your barracks and I've had a chance to se the rough, tough life you lead. Out home we treat our cattle better'n they treat you. Now this discipline thing is just a way to get the dirty work done."

The cadets loved it. But the Superintendent had difficulty maintaining his composure.

"If the people down in Washington knew about this there would be some changes made," Rogers continued. Then, pointing to Sladen, he said, "There's just one fella responsible for this and there he sets, just a pinhead, on his cushion."

When it appeared that nothing could prevent the General from having this character escorted from the reservation, Will wound up: "Now you fellas wonder how I can get away with sayin' such things about people as important as the General. Inivtation to The Dance

It is easy to forget, with age, that asking a girl to a dance is not, at 16, a simple business. The thought that a lad nearly six feet tall might be too bashful to ask a young lady to go to a dance never enters one's head.

That is, until the end of the school year approaches and with it, school dances. One gathers, listening to feminine talk at dinner that the youngest lady of the house desires very much indeed to go to a certain dance but that she has not been asked. One regards as scientificaly as possible this young lady. She is very young, a bit angular, not beautiful perhaps, but not unattractive, either. Is she doomed to an adolescence during which she will be the girl who isn't asked to dances? One is reassured by news that few of her contemporaries have been, as yet, asked to this dance.

Day follows day with no sign that a boy—one boy in particular—is going to alk this young lady to this dance. The only hopeful note is that he has asked no one else. Each day the youngest lady of the house arrives home with a news bulletin—so-and-so has been invited to the dance.

The youngest lady of the house begins to look forlorn. She discovers, though a third party, that this particular young man really wants to ask her to the dance but that he has not been able to summon the courage. One has seen this lad—big, for just-turned 16, weighing about 160 pounds—and one is puzzled.

Working in the garden ones sees the young man driving his father's car slowly by the house, and one is seen in return. The car jerks forward and speeds away. Had one not been in sight, would he have come in and delivered the golden invitation? The telephone rings, but before the youngest lady can reach it the ring stops. One knows—one is sure—it was he, and that nerve failed at the final minute. The youngest lady of the house, four days before the dance, begins to fret. She has a new dress and an appointment with the hairdresser; are these for nought?

One comes home next day and opens the front door. The lady of the house, looking ten years younger, cries, "He asked her!" One grumbles that it is about time, secretly breathing a little sign of relief—not only that the youngest lady has been asked, but also that one is fortyish and need not relive those terrible, terrible teens.

Now If You Want To make a fortune, or at least get a big income with probably less work than the average, go into the military and retire as a general or an admiral. Then several big corporations may put you on their payroll at fat salaries for what you can do for them—maybe in getting government orders. We've just read the various sources of income of retired Admiral Arthur Radford, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and perhaps the most powerful and glamorized naval officer to hald sway in the Pentagon in recent years. According to Drew Pearson, his pension as a retired admiral, amounts to $1,072.18 a month. Then he gets $15,000 a year from the Bankers Trust Co., plus $12,000 annually from Philco, another $12,000 from Molydenum, plus around $15,000 from Champion Paper, and approximately $15,000 from Worthington Pump.

Saturday we drove to Centralia for the final rites of Harold Miller, publisher of the Centralia Fireside-Guard. We wish we could hold a place in the hearts of our community as did Mr. Miller. As his pastor told of the good he had done in the short 51 years of his life, we could understand why the big church was so full of people for the service. Never than we can remember have we heard a pastor make reference to one whom he was about to bury "He was a blessing to his community." Throughout the sermon we were constantly reminded of that line from Thanatopsis, "So live that when thy summons comes to join the innumerable caravan . . . " And Mr. Miller died, as most publishers would like to, while actually at work on his newspaper. And he was reading the proof of the obituary of a fellow citizen when the heart attack caused his collapse and instant death.

Memorial Day Should rank with the Fourth of July in patriotic impulse, but so little stir is there in the hearts of this community, the only actual celebration of the day is in quitting work. When first we came to Shelbina there was a gifted speaker to remind us on Memorial Day of how payment had been made for the freedom we enjoyed. But only a handful of people gathered to hear him and to listen to the band play, so this part of the program was given up. But still there was the firing squad and the buglers who played "taps." Now even this has been done away with. We do go to the cemeteries to place flowers on the graves of those who have died in recent years. As time passes, more and More lots are undecorated. Happily our American Legion Post still puts flags on the resting places of our service men. This, likely, is a bigger show than any made for any holiday throughout the year. The others are merely a time for taking the day off and visiting friends. And each holiday increases the number of graves to be decorated on Memorial Day.

A Board Locks the Door After the Horse is Swiped!

"Secrecy legislation" is a political football at Madison these days.

One of the Democrats' first goals, according to Governor-elect Nelson, will be an anti-secrecy law.

Allegations of government in secret against the Republicans were stock arguments of the Democrats for several campaign years.

Watchful Republicans issue a scoffing rejoinder. The anti-secrecy communique, they say, came from what was a planned Democrat secret meeting at Wisconsin Dells. Reporters were not invited to the session, which was publicized only when some newsmen stumbled onto it.

So the ball goes — back and forth. But the fact remains: both information is a necessity.

Nearer home — across the state line in Capron, Ill. — the Village board members are indignant because "uninformed citizens" are endeavoring to halt the erection of a steel garage for the village's truck and squad car, and Capron Rescue Squad's truck.

Perhaps Editor M. M. Boyd of Capron's Boone County Courier has not always received 100 per cent cooperation from boards, when it came to reporting their activities.

Perhaps the Courier is partly at fault. The reporting of such meetings apparently has not received the high rating it deserves in the weekly's planning.

At any rate, this situation proves a point. It is important that the people be informed as to what their governing boards are doing. Just the presence of a reporter at ameeting is a rudder to help keep any Ship of State on an even keel.

But it costs money to send reporters to such meetings. That's why business people — and the governing bodies themselves — should support their home town newspapers with advertising and legal publications.

Teamwork it what makes a community a better place in which to live.

A young smart aleck in a convertible, about to make a right-hand turn at a Calgary intersection, blasted his horn at an elderly woman pedestrian in his path. Several people nearby jumped in fright,, but the old lady stopped short and pointed at the nose of the convertible. "Smoke! Smoke!" she cried. Instantly the hornblower was out of his car, had the hood up and his head in the motor. And just as fast his victim hurried around to the driver's seat and let him have it with a crashing blast on his own horn at close range.

Worry Clinic

DR. GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph D., M.D.

John was an athletic young man who suddenly found his muscles turning to water. And it was due to fear. When we think positively and have confidence, our muscles actually are far stronger than when we are fearful, as the hypnosis experiment described below will clearly prove.

CASE F-427: John T., aged 20, was a member of my crew of tree surgeons when I was a young man.

For I worked for a couple of years as a tree surgeon and headed up a gang of half a dozen athletic workers.

John was a newcomer to the organization. The first day on the job he had shinned up a tall elm, with his pruning saw fastened to his belt.

But just as he was about to throw his leg over the fork in the tree, he looked down. And he grew panicky.

"Help, help!" he yelled, "for I can't hold on," and before we could go to his rescue, he dropped about 30 feet to the ground, spraining his ankle.

Actually, he had plenty of strength available, but his fear robbed him of it.

If he had hugged the tree only moderately, the friction of the rough bark against his work shirt, would have stopped his descent. But John was so scared he was practically powerless.

Hypnosis Experiment

If you think positively and feel confident, your strength is actually greater than when you feel defeated or afraid.

This fact was specifically proved by an interesting hypnosis experiment in England where a group of soldiers were given a handgrip test.

Before they were hypnotized, they were told to grip the machine as hard as they could. Since they were competing with each other, they did a good job and averaged 101 lbs.

Then they were hypnotized. Now they were told that they were weak and feeble. Under this negative mental attitude, they were then urged to grip the machine as strongly as possible.

And they averaged only 69 lbs! But notice what happened next, for they were now told that they were strong, powerful, Herculean.

And with this "positive" mental attitude, their handgrip averaged 140 lbs! Note that this was almost 40 per cent higher than their best possible strength when they were in the normal waking state.

"But, Dr. Crane, where did that extra strength come from?" you may ask.

Positive Thinking

Well, we know the muscles didn't suddenly grow bigger and stronger by an increase in the number or size of the muscle cells.

So that greater power was there all the time! But in the normal waking state, when these men were competing, their attention was diverted somewhat.

In hypnosis, however, they concentrated their attention. For they were momentarily deaf and blind and insensitive to other stimuli. So there was less draining of their attention into other channels.

And that's why mothers, when semi-hypnotized by danger to their youngsters, often perform feats of strength that they can't duplicate under normal conditions.

Positive thinking correlates with confidence. Negative thinking is a twin for uncertainty and fear.

One reason why the New York Yankees and the Big 10 football teams are so successful is because they "feel" successful. A long tradition of winning thus helps promote future winning.

So think good, wholesome thoughts. Look for virtues in yourself and in others, instead of fearfully analyzing your body for aches or ailments.

Join a church, too, for that extroverts your thoughts upon other people so you forget self, as Silas Marner did after little Eppie arrived.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long four cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

CHICAGO—Two men, not in the headlines, are playing the biggest roles in shaping the destinies of this convention. The men in the headlines, of course, are Vice President Nixon and Gov. Rockefeller. But the men who have shaped their destiny backstage, directly, are an ex-governor of New York, Tom Dewey, and a man who would be governor of New York, Len Hall, Nixon's campaign manager.

More than any other one man, Len Hall is responsible for blocking the presidential ambitions of Nelson Rockefeller. More than any other one man, Tom Dewey could have guided Rockefeller to the White House. Dewey has been under great obligation to the Rockefeller family, but when the chips were down, Dewey practiced law.

The role of these two men is shaping the course of the Republican party, may shape the course of the nation.

Len Hall, son of Teddy Roosevelt's coachman in Oyster Bay, L.I., worked his way up from GOP boss of Oyster Bay, to be chairman of the Republican National Committee. He had further ambitions. He wanted to be Eisenhower's postmaster general, and according to most political standards he deserved it. He was the man who admitted that he deliberately conned the public into thinking Eisenhower would run again after his heart attack when Hall had consulted neither Ike, nor the family, nor the doctors.

$7,000 Contribution

Then Len Hall made one very serious mistake. He put the bee on the Frederick H. Snare Co. for a political contribution before he would OK a contract for the enlargement of the government's Nicaro Nickle plant in Cuba. This is against the law,. You cannot require a government contractor to make a political contribution. Yet sworn evidence, brought out by Congressman Jack Brooks of Texas before a House Investigating Committee, proved in great detail how Hall had required snare executives to kick in $7,000 before the contract was OK'd.

Brooks sent the sworn evidence to the Justice Department for prosecution. But Attorney-General Brownell, an old political associate of Len Hall's in New York, did not prosecute. Istead Hall gave up his ambition to be postmaster general, discreetly bowed out of Washington for New York. There he hoped to become governor. But there Nelson Rockefeller, who had the same ambition, won out.

Since then Hall has been a bitter, vengeful man. He has been out to block Rockefeller's ambition to be president and also to ruin him as a political force in New York. He and New York's other Old Guard leaders want to get their hands on patronge contracts, state machinery. They have fared worse under Rockefeller than under the Democrats.

So Len Hall began last October calling up GOP leaders in every state where Rockefeler visited telling thm to give him the cold shoulder, sit on their hands, discourage him from running. That was why last December, discouraged, Rockefeller bowed out. Since then, Hall has been buttonholing delegates, working from within the New York delegation, doing everything possible to pull the rug out from under the man who blocked his ambition to be governor of New York.

Wire-puller Needed

What Rockefeller has needed most has been a skilled politician to steer his campaign. In 1952, Eisenhower had the best backstage wire-puller in the business, Tom Dewey, working for him at Cicago. When Ike needed key vots to swing the convention, Dewey phoned Ben Fairless, head of U.S. Steel, and Eugene Grace, head of Bethlehem Steel. They in turn phoned Gov. John Fine of Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania delegates had come to Chicago pledged to Sen. Taft. Next morning they woke up to find themselves pledged to Eisenhower. There is no one in the world to whom Tom Dewey is more deeply obligated than the Rockefellers. During his many campaigns they contributed a round (two works) million dollars Nelson's uncle, Winthrop Aldrich, collected $2,000,000 for the GOP in 1944 alone.

In 1950, when Dewey wanted to run for another term as governor, Aldrich called a special meeting in the Chase Bank which he then ran, called his cousin, John D. Rockefeller Jr., in Bar Harbor, and together they arranged for Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley to bow out, Tom Dewey to run again. The Rockefellers even gave Joe Hanley a job with one of the Standard Oil companies and helped meet his $30,000 of political debts.

That's how Dewey got elected for his final term as governor.

But today Tom Dwey isn't pulling wires for the Rckefeller family and the man of that family is justifiably proud. Tom Dewey is practicing law.

Mrs. Eisenhower Guest Of Honor At Historic Fashion Show

CHICAGO (AP) — First Lady Mamie Eisenhower, after a Republican convention ovation, stars today at a showing of historic fashions of past GOP occupants of the White House.

She is the guest of honor at a "Great Ladies" luncheon, a gala social event of the GOP convention.

It was much publicized, rehearsed and even previewed on television before the actual production today before some 2,000 women.

The display included a replica of Mrs. Eisenhower's Renoir pink inaugural ballgown, with 2,000 glittering pink rhinestones, modeled by attractive Mrs. William Stratton, wife of the governor of Illinois.

The gowns, representing the 12 first ladies of Republican presidents from 1860 to 1960, were careful copies of actual dresses now on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

It has been estimated the copying job cost $25,000. It was done by Mme. Barbara Karinska, who has costumed the New York City Ballet.

With professional staging and amateur models — all prominent GOP wives — the showing included narration by Arlene Dahl and Wendell Corey.

Such care was taken in the planning of the affair that Mrs. Styles Bridges, wife of the New Hampshire senator, even was wearing a University of Vermont sorority pin like one Grace Coolidge wore. Mrs. Bridges was modeling the dusty rose velvet short flapper-era dress of Mrs. Coolidge.

Mrs. Lawrence Averill of Detroit, in the same sorority chapter as Mrs. Coolidge, provided her pin for Mrs. Bridges' costume.

The dresses are considered so elegant and historic that they will go on tour of the United States from here and may be presented to a museum later.

Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, Illinois national committeewoman and official convention hostess, spent months setting up the affair featuring a specially composed "Great Lady Waltz" and a luncheon menu including mint julep frappe, festival of chicken and a dessert described as "american bombe illuminated en parade."

Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, wife of the vice president, were the honored guests.

SPECIAL PROGRAM TO BE PRESENTED BY CANCER SOCIETY FOR TEENAGERS

In order to present the facts in the relationship between smoking and lung cancer to all people, and especially teenagers, the Missouri Division of the American Cancer Society will launch a state-wide information program on the subject this fall. The program is planned to begin with pupils in the 7th grade in public, parochial, and private schools, where the preventive approach to cancer can be stressed before the smoking habit is developed. It will be expanded to include men's and women's groups throughout the state.

More than 1,000,000 school children in this country will die of lung cancer before they reach the age of 70 if present trends continue, according to the American Public Health Association. Dr. Leroy E. Burney, surgeon general of the United States, states that the weight of evidence indicts smoking as the principal factor in the growing incidence of lung cancer.

"Plans include the use of film strips, recordings, literature, and talks by both laymen and physicians," Dr. Terry Lilly says. "We expect thousands of volunteers will be helping with the program, including many physicians throughout the state. One thing the committee is stressing is that the program will only bring the facts in relationship between smoking and lung cancer to the people. The decision to smoke or not to smoke is an individual matter."

Law Stops Cardinals; Gives Bucs 2nd Win

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The stubborn Pittsburgh Pirates aren't going to walk the plank for anybody. At least not as long as Vern Law can beat the St. Louis Cardinals practically blindfolded.

And not as long as ElRoy Face can right a sinking ship.

The Cards rocked Law with a pair of two-run homers in the seventh inning Tuesday night, but he survived the inning with a 5-4 lead that turned out to be the final score as Pittsburgh stayed a half game ahead of Milwaukee in the National League pennant race.

The victory was Law's 13th, making him the biggest winner in the majors.

It was also his 10th straight over St. Louis which hasn't beaten him since June 24, 1958.

But when the Cards acted up on reliever Fred Green in the eighth, it was up to Face to salt the victory with a double play ball and then a 1-2-3 job in the ninth for his 15th save among the Pirates' 55 triumphs.

Milwaukee, too, had it in the bullpen, as Ron Piche saved his seventh for the Braves who beat the Giants 3-1 at San Francisco. Carl Willey (5-4) was the winner on a five-hitter, but Piche had to wipe out the side in the ninth after the Giants rocked Willey with a homer and a single.

Cincinnati's Bob Purkey (10-6) pitched the only complete winning game in the league, a four-hitter that topped the Dodgers 4-1 at Los Angeles. Dick Farrell had to bail out Robin Roberts (7-9) to nail down the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, come-from-behind victory at Chicago.

The Pirates put over the clinching runs in the top of the seventh when Bill Mazeroski singled and pinch-hitter Bill Virdon hit his sixth homer. Law had a triple, his second of the year, in a three-run Pittsburgh outburst in the fourth against loser Curt Simmons (2-1).

Carl Sawatski and that slugging pinch hitter, George Crowe, had the Cardinal homers. Crowe extended his alltime pinch-hit homer record to 13.

The Braves' victory, their sixth straight over the Giants and their 11th in their last 13 games, prevented Sad Sam Jones (12-10) from matching Law's win record. Jones struck out 11 and didn't give up a hit until the sixth inning.

But in the seventh the Braves' Lee Maye singled through the box, stole second and came home on Johnny Logan's single. In the eighth, Eddie Mathews walked and went to third in Hank Aaron's single. Joe Adcock squeezed home Mathews and Aaron scored when Jim Marshall threw wild trying to catch him at second.

Marshall homered to lead off the ninth, and Felipe Alou singled, but Piche moved in to ge tHobie Landrith on a fly, and pinch hitters Dave Philley and Dale Long on ground balls.

Rookies Cliff Cook and Gordon Coleman, each playing only his second game for Cincinnati, drove in a run apiece and veteran Frank Robinson hit homer No. 19 for the other two as Cincinnati beat Johnny Podres (8-8). Cook had four singles in four trips.

Purkey, who has now beaten the Dodgers three times this season, gave up Duke Snider's 12th home run.

The Phillies, down 2-1 in the ninth, got a three-run homer from third-string catcher Clay Dal-13). But then Ron Santo opened the Cub half with a homer. Farrell came on, only to be greeted by a double by Ernie Banks, before getting the final three men. Banks earlier regained a share of the league home run lead when he hit No. 28 to match Aaron's total.

Marciano Makes Golfing Debut In Baltimore Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rocky Marciano, the retired heavyweight boxing champion, makes his debut in tournament golf today in the pro-am division of the Eastern Open.

"When I step out on the course, it'll be like fighting a four-rounder in a small town," Rocky said. "I want to get used to playing before crowds."

Rocky said he took to the links about 16 months ago, mainly because of the good golfing weather in Florida. He confesses he didn't think he'd like the game.

"But after playing about two months," he said, "I broke 90 and the golfing bug got me."

Bobby Hull ot Chicago and Bronco Horvath of Boston scored 39 goals each during the National Hockey League season. Hull led in points, 81 to 80.

You can look it up. Nellie Fox homered and Jim Landis drove in four runs.

When the Chicago White Sox get this kind of hitting plus anticipated homers from their off-season power purchases — Gene Freese, Roy Sievers and Minnie Minoso—who's going to beat the defending American League champions?

Not Boston, that's for sure.

The seventh-place Red Sox were the patsies again Tuesday night as Chicago slammed - slammed-slammed all over Fenway Park in a 16-3, 21-hit victory that retained their one-game lead over the New York Yankees. It was Chicago's eighth straight over Boston and 12th victory in 16 games with the Red Sox this season.

The Yanks came alive in their own stadium, stopping Cleveland 6-1 behind winner Art Ditmar (8-7) and reliever Luis Arroyo. Mickey Mantle's 25th homer, a two-run shot in the sixth inning, was the difference as the Yanks won for only the fifth time in their last 15.

Third-place Baltimore fell four games behind when ex-Yank-Johnny Kucks beat the Orioles for Kansas City 2-1. Detroit moved into a fifth-place tie with Washington by defeating the Senators 5-3.

Fox' homer was his first of the season. The little left-hander, who hits for average but isn't doing it this year (.271) has only 28 homers in 14 years in the majors. Landis' RBI upped his season total to 31. Usually he doesn't quite average one every three games.

Sievers hit his 16th homer, Minoso his 11th and Freese his 9th.

Freese added two doubles and two singles in a 5-for-6 performance, and Sievers went 4-for-5 by adding three singles. Fox and Sherm Lollar each sent home two runs.

That made it easy for Early Wynn to win his sixth in 13 decisions and the White Sox their 22nd in the last 31 games. Jerry Casale (2-9) was a loser for the ninth straight time.

Jimmy Piersall, Cleveland's problem player, scored the Indian run in the second inning. He beat out a bunt for a hit, was sacrificed to second and came home on Johnny Romano's single. After that it was all Fankees.

Mantle socked a 2-0 pitch by losing southpaw Dick Stigman (4-6) into the right field stands with Roger Maris, who had walked, on base.

The Yankees rammed over their other four runs in the seventh against three relievers.

Kucks of the Athletics hadn't pitched a winning complete game against Baltimore since 1956, his big yaer when he was 18-9 with the Yanks and picked up a key World Series victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Another ex-Yank, Jerry Lumpe, doubled and scored the tying run in the seventh, then beat out an infield topper in the eighth to send across the winning run as the A's singled four straight times with two out to defeat Milt Pappas (8-8).

Detroit's Frank Lary (7-9) won his third straight after giving up the three Senator runs in the first.

A's Beat Birds On Late Inning Singles Rally

The Kansas City Athletics singled their way to a 2-1 victory over the Orioles at Baltimore Tuesday night.

The A's hit four consecutive singles with two outs in the eighth to break a 1-1 tie.

Vern Law of Pittsburgh became the winningest pitcher in the major leagues Tuesday night with a 5-4 victory against St. Louis.

Law has won 13 games while losing 5. It was his 10th consecutive victory over the Redbirds since 1958.

But Carl Sawatski and pinch-hitter George Crowe each got to him for two-run homers in the seventh.

Crowe's blast to the right field pavilion roof was his third homer of the season—all as a pinch hitter. It was the 13th pinch homer of his career.

Lp until the seventh, Law had mastered the Cards, holding them to four hits.

Fred Green appeared briefly as a relief in the seventh but Manager Danny Murtaugh jerked him after Joe Cunningham singled, Bill White sacrificed and Stan Musial walked.

Roy Face, ace Pittsburgh fireman, then took over. He made Daryl Spencer hit into a double play and set the Cardinals down in order in the ninth to preserve Laws's victory.

Tonight, the Pirates play their final game of the series at Busch Stadium and George Witt (0-0) is scheduled for mound duty against Ray Sadecki (4-4) for the Cardinals.

Mils Pappas, the Oriole loser, had a one - hit shutout through the first six innings. He retired the first two batters in the eighh bu hen Bob Johnson and winning pitcher Johnny Kucks smacked singles to right field.

Then Bill Tuttle beat out a slow roller to third baseman Brooks Robinson, loading the bases, and Johnson scored when Jerry Lumpe beat out a topper to second baseman Marv Breeding.

Kucks allowed 9 hits and walked two.

Ashburn Looks Ahead To '60 Batting Crown

CHICAGO (AP) —Richie Ashburn, 33, thinks a .335 percentage may be good enough to win the National League batting crown this season and that he has a chance to grab it.

"But I'm still 20 points or so behind Willie Mays (of San Francisco) and Norm Larker (Los Angeles—and that Mays, especially, is steady enough to keep up the pace," said the Chicago Cubs' outfielder, one of the majors' best lead-off men.

Ashburn, who wound up 12 seasons with the Philadelphia Phils last year with his poorest showing, .266, now is hitting .321. Through last year he had a career average of .311, winning the title in 1958 with .350 and 1955 with .338.

"It's complete mystery to me what happened last year when I dropped to .266," said the broad-shouldered blond. "I just can't explain it. I felt better then than I do this season. I didn't have a good spring—as a fact, I've never had a good spring since the first one when I broke in with Philadelphia in 1948.

"I usually hit better as the season progresses," added Ashburn whom the Cubs got from the Phillies last January in a trade for infielders Al Dark and Jim Woods and pitcher John Buzhardt.

Ashburn was asked if he thought he would hit better with a first-division club.

"I don't think there would be much difference," he said.

"I will say that being with a winning team is a lot more fun. It makes you feel better, eat better and sleep better. But no matter what club I would be with, I would be out there trying my best to get a hit or get on base somehow. Anyone likes to take pride in his work."

Top Golfers Choose To Sidestep Eastern Open

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sam Snead, an aristocrat of the golfing circuit from the West Virginia hills, found himself involved today in a big-city squabble.

The 48-year-old slammer, a former Eastern Open winner, ruffled tourney officials by announcing he plans to skip the 11th annual event starting at the Pine Ridge course Thursday.

Two other top-name players and former winners here, Arnold Palmer and Art Wall Jr., joined Snead in by-passing the Eastern. All three have scheduled exhibitions in nearby Pennsylvania and Virginia while the tournament is in progress.

Snead calmly drawled:.

"I don't know why they're objecting to a match in Philadelphia. How many Eastern Open spectators do they expect to have from Philadelphia?"

Irv Kovens, general chairman of the tourney, has opposed the exhibitions scheduled by the missing stars and contended the next move, if any, is up to the Professional Golfers Assn.

But PGA Tourney Director Ed Carter is reported angry with the Eastern Open Committee for Allowing Snead to play in today's pro-am event. It was felt this ruined any case against the players skipping the regular tournament.

In Sikeston its 13 to 1.

Piersall May Have To Answer To Frick For Future Trouble

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP — The next time Jimmy Piersall gets into trouble, he may have to answer to Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick.

Frick, The Associated Press learned today, met Tuesday with Harvey Kuenn and discussed the Piersall situation with the Cleveland Indian player representative. Kuenn brought the commissioner up to date on the Piersall matter and the commissioner told him he would keep close tabs on Piersall's actions the rest of the season.

The Piersall matter came up when Kuenn visited the commissioner's office to discuss plans for next year's All-Star game.

Frick earlier had talked by telephone to American League President Joe Cronin, who had given Piersall a fatherly talk Monday after slapping him with a $100 fine for being ejected, for the sixth time this season, in a game in Boston last Saturday. The commissioner had refrained from becoming involved as he felt Piersall's difficulties with umpires was strictly an American League matter.

The controversial center fielder of the Indians had incurred the wrath of his teammates who insisted Piersall 'was hurting our pennant chances."

The Cleveland players, claiming Piersall's antics 'were making them nervous, were to have held a closed-door meeting with Manager Joe Gordon before Tuesday night's game with the New York Yankees. It was cancelled when Piersall promised Kuenn that he would stay out of rhubarbs and adhere strictly to baseball.

Kuenn, sympathetic to Piersall, told Frick he believed the troubled star, who is enjoying one of his best seasons, is earnest about mending his ways and should be given a chance to prove it.

Piersall was on his best behavior Tuesday as the Indians were beaten 6-1 by the Yankees. He scored the Indians' only run, following his second inning bunt single, and was cheered by a crowd of 37,632 each time he came to bat. He got one hit in four times at bat and is batting .295. He is tied for the club lead with 50 runs batted in and is second in home runs with 13.

FORMER PACIFIC COAST TEAMS JOIN FORMATION OF SKYLINE CONFERENCE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Skyline Conference was in bits and pieces today but some new formations were on the horizon.

Realignment, it's called.

Some old Pacific Coast Conference teams figure in the new formations. So do Arizona and Arizona State University of the Border Conference.

For months these schools have been talking about setting up a new conference.

Tuesday night the presidents of the eight Skyline Conference schools issued a joint statement after an all-day meeting, to wit:

"Some realignment of the conference is indicated within a relatively short time. . . . Indeed, several of the schools reported today they are considering the possibility of other affiliations. . . ."

Those schools considering "other affiliations" were not specified, but they are Utah, Brigham Young and New Mexico, judging by all the unofficial meetings going on.

The old PCC schools which have met with Utah, BYU and New Mexico about a realignment are Washington State, Oregon and Oregon State. Arizona and Arizona State University sat in on those talks, too.

Sikeston Star Squads Advance In LL Play

Matthews Over Bertrand 1-0

The Sikeston Aces and Sikeston All-Stars both looked as if they had the power and players to go all the way in their own annual Little League baseball tournament when they kicked off the week-long affair with victories over Morehouse and Benton. In the contest played second on last night's card, the Matthews nine subdued the Bertrand team 1-0 in a brilliant little league game.

Tonight the tournament moves on with the two Poplar Bluff teams getting into the action. Poplar Bluff No. 1 plays New Madrid in the first game and Poplar Bluff No. 2 takes on Oran in the final contest of the evening.

In last night's first game, the Sikeston Aces proved to be more than enough for the Morehouse team when they topped them 10-4 in five innings of play. Gary Champion was on the mound for the Sikeston team, going all the way while giving up four hits. The Sikeston team collected five hits off Morehouse hurler Hailey and pushed across ten runs, scored by eight different men. Morehouse took an early advantage in the game, scoring one run in the first inning and then three more in the third to be tied with the Sikeston opponents who notched four in that frame. One more in the fourth and a final barrage of four tallies in the fifth inning put the victory in the bag for the Sikeston team.

Mathews battled to a 1-0 victory in the second game, scoring their lone tally in the final inning on a hit by Schuerenberg who finaly scored the run, a sacrifice, an error, and a fielder's choice. McMillan hurled for Matthews, posting a two-hit shut-out over the Bertrand forces. Naile, going all they way for Bertrand, allowed only four hits, but was credited with the loss.

A brilliant no-hitter by Billy Culp, added to good hitting by the Sikeston All-Stars gave the senior Little League squad a resounding 13-0 win in the third and final contest of the evening. Culp worked the entire six inning, striking out 15 batters while giving up only two basses on balls. Webb and Gooch socked big home runs for the all-Stars as they joined in a nine hit rally that produced one run in the first, six in the third, three in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Potlatch Falls In Practice To International

Sikeston's two Connie Mack clubs, the International shoe and Potlatch Forests teams, both left with an open date due to forfeits, squared of in a practice contest last night with International, further down in the standings of the league, coming up to sock their inter-city rivals 3-2.

Payne hurled for the winners, allowing five hits, Springs started for the Potlatch team, but was relieved by Brothers. Together they gave up five hits and the three runs.

The contest went into the final inning tied up 1-1. Potlatch pushed across one tally, but the International squad came back with a single by Baker who scored ahead of Little, making up the winning-two-run total. Collins scored in the team their only other run.

CARD OFFENSIVE STAR SET FOR '60 NFL YEAR

LAKE FOREST, ILL. — John David Crow, St. Louis Cardinals ace ball carrier and all-round offensive star, reported in great shape and looks like he'd be ready if the 1960 National Football League season were starting tomorrow.

John David reported about five pounds overweight. This is great because the former Texas Aggie All-America back is a hard worker, a go-guy who hustles every minute whether it be practice, scrimmage, a pre-season or NFL game.

This hustle is a lovely habit, something which is natural with John David and has made him one of the featured attractions wherever the Cardinals play. St. Louis fans will be using the chant "Give it to John David" whenever the Cards need yardage, anywhere's from one to 100 yards.

In his first season he set a Cardinals record with an 83-yard run from the Cards 17 for a touchdown against the Washington Redskins, Oct. 4, 1958, and the week following - against the Browns in Cleveland, John David took a flat pass from Quarterback M. C. Reynolds and scampered 91 yards for a score. That was his freshman year and most certainly would have been one of the most spectacular in NFL history if he hadn't suffered an injury in the sixth game. He played part of one other game, returned a kickoff 54 yards against the Bears and was hurt again.

Last year John David had a fine year, carrying the ball 140 times for 666 yards - one of the 140 carries being a sensational 73-yard run. Only three players in Cardinals history have gained more yardage in one season - Halfbacks Ollie Matson with 924 yards in 1956, Cahrley Trippi with 690 in 1948 and Elmer Angsman with 674 in 1949. The odd thing about Crow's total last season was the fact that he probably would have beaten both Trippi and Angsman if he had carried the ball a few times against the Washington Redskins on the latters' field. He played the entire game on offens never carried the ball onc some unaccountable reason.

Another long-gainer last year a spectacular 72-yard kickoff return against the giants in New York a run in which John David ran over a couple of Giants and would have gone all the way but for a missed blocked by one of his mates.

In addition to John David's ability as a ball carrier, he's a terrific pass receiver - catching 47- for 690 yards and seven touchdowns during the past two professional seasons. This should be his greatest season in football, and once again he'll be gaining anywhere's from one to 100 yards each time he gets his hands on the ball.

When Sandy Koufax blanked Pittsburgh with one hit it marked the Dodger southpaw's first win after four setbacks.

This is my first try for an elective position and because of my lack of experience in this sort of competitive race, I welcome the advice and the assistance of my friends who feel I would serve our County well as its Assessor. Believe me, if elected, I will give the position my ENTIRE time and will do the best I can to keep the office efficient and courteous.

KAREN JANTZE TRIES FOR PENN TENNIS WIN

HAVERFORD, Pa. (AP) — Young Karen Jantze of San Diego, Calif., hopes to reach another milestone in her brilliant career by winning the women's title in the 61st annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships.

Thus far the 17-year-old holder of both the U.S. and Wimbledon junior crowns has looked good with a powerful attacking game.

She advanced to the third round Tuesday by defeating July Alvarez, Tampa, Fla., 6-2, 6-1.

She faces tough competition in the days to come in Darlene Hard, Hanet Hopps, Mimi Arnold, Belmar Gunderson, Gwyneth Thomas, Margaret Varner and Mrs. William duPont Jr., all of whom advance to the third round as expected.

In the men's division, most of the top-seeded players, led by Australia's Rod Laver, also advanced.

Laver had difficulty with Jim Schnaars of Haverford, but finally won, 6-4, 6-4. Fellow Australian Bob Mark eliminated Rudy Hernando of Detroit 6-3, 6-1.

Miguel Olvera, a colorful Ecuadorean, and Myron Franks, of Los Angeles, America's seventh-ranked player, scored dramatic come-from-behind victories.

Olvera trailed in each set before defeating Philadelphia's Harry Hoffman Jr., 7-5, 9-7.

Franks, seeded second, had a rough time eliminating Straight Clark of Haverford, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL RODEO SET FOR DAKOTA

Hot Springs, South Dakota, the "Picture City of the Black Hills" will be the setting of the 12th Annual National High School Championship Rodeo Finals. Contestants will come from a wide area of the United States-- all the way from New Orleans, Louisiana, in the south to Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, in the north and as far west as Nevada. These are young people, all high school students, who enjoy participating in this the roughest and most dangerous of American sports. The idea that the youth of America are going soft doesn't hold true in the case of these boys and girls who travel such a long distance to compete in this rodeo, having already demonstrated their ability by winning in the State Rodeo of their respective state. What do they compete for? It isn't money because no cash prizes are awarded—at the most a saddle. Most of them compete in these rodeos merly for the joy and fun of pitting their skills against one another in bronc riding, bull riding, cattle roping, steer wrestling and so forth.

National Tennis Champs

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — The National Junior and Boys Tennis Championship tourney went indoors Tuesday in an attempt to salvage a rain-soaked second round.

Only 12 matches of a scheduled 97 were held before a downpour halted play on the clay courts at Kalamazoo College. Doubles play resumed later on the Western Michigan University basketball courts and on the Kalamazoo College tennis courts.

In the second round singles, fourth-seeded George Seewagon, Bayside, N.Y., was defeated by James Osborne, Honolulu, in the tourney's first upset.

Osborne beat Seewagon, 6-2, 6-1, in competition for boys 15 and under.

In other play, second-seeded Martin Schad, Louisville, Ky., beat John Underwood, Dixon, Ill., 6-1, 6-0, and third-seeded Ham Magill, Athens, Ga., downed Edward Down, Fort Wayne, Ind., 6-3, 6-2.

Second round play in both singles and doubles continues today.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

CHICAGO — The Republicans are able to keep a United Front much better than the Democrats —at least on the surface. But backstage they erupted fiercely and at times passionately over the secret New York meeting between Governor Rockefeller and Vice President Nixon.

Three women and one man on the Platform Committee wept when told they would have to rewrite the planks they had meticulously drawn up for the GOP. Len Hall, Nixon's campaign manager, erupted like a volcano when he learned at 3:30 a.m. that the man he was supposed to be managing had been huddling in New York with the political enemy Hall hates most.

And in the Republican Finance Committee, five states flatly refused to contribute their allotment to the Republican Naional Comcommitt in protest against the Rockefeller - Nixon plaform. It took all the persuasive influence of Spencer Olin, finance chairman, and of Sen. E. McKinley Dirksen to keep more of the committee from revolting.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona touched off the fireworks. He entered the closed-door meeting of the Finance Committee almost shaking with anger.

"I am boiling," he said, in icy tones. "Do you mind if I take a drink of water to cool off?

Can you imagine a meeting of two men 1,000 miles away usurping the work of this convention? Since when has the Republican party become a rubber stamp for this kind of surrender?"

Nixon didn't Tell

Goldwater's tone was cold but his words were scathing. He said he had talked to Nixon on the telephone the day before and the vice president had indicated his agreement with Goldwater's own conservative views. Nixon had not even mentioned his planned trip to see Rockefeller and his surrender to a platform "too liberal, too far to the left."

Concluding the senator from Arizona dropped word privately that if the Republican party assembled in convention was to be overruled, he might well go home.

Robert Snodgrass of Atlanta, finance chairman for Georgia, was just as scathing. So was Richard Hagy of Louisiana. He flatly refused to contribute the allotment which Louisiana was due to contribute to the national campaign fund. So did Roger Milliken, the big textile manufacturer from South Carolina.

Arkansas' grizzled Harry N. Pollock of Ft. Smith, was blunt and to the point.

"I have three ballots in my hand," he said, holding up three pieces of paper." One says "I pass'; the other says, "I take a walk"; the other says, "take another look.' For the time being I'm going to vote the last, "Take another look.' "

Pollock left the clear implication that if the Republican party adopted the liberal civil rights platform agreed to by Nixon and Rockefeller, Arkansas would take a walk.

Finally, Spencer Olin, big balding finance chairman of Alton, Ill., head of the giant Olin-Mathieson industrial empire, warned the Finance Committee that it was 15 per cent below its quota. Olin is not an inspiring speaker. Usualy he looks at the floor and the words come haltingly. But now he became almost eloquent as he appealed to the Republicans not to split up like Democrats, but to unite.

Despite this, five southern states held out. Some GOP money-raisers looked a little ruefully at the list of states behind in their quotas and wondered whether they could raise the $4,300,000 more in addition to the $3,500,000 already on hand — in the four months before elections.

Clear It with Sidney

As the GOP platform Committee irritably endeavored to adopt a considerable portion of the new Rockefeller-Nixon platform just handed them, the two New York delegates registered reservations.

Joe Carlino, speaker of the New York assembly, and Miss Wilma Sibertsen, consistently held back their vote on the ground that Gov. Rockefeller had not seen the final text.

Finally, as John E. Cobb of North Carolina was asked to vote on one section of the platform, he paraphrased the famous statement attributed to President Roosevelt in 1940 when he said he would have to clear the proposed vice presidency of Jimmy Byrnes with labor leader Sidney Hillman.

"I reserve my vote," said delegate Cobb. "I haven't consulted Sidney."

Glad Hand

Vice President Nixon has set up for himself the most stupendous hand-shaking camera-posing program in history. In Chicago he plans to greet every single one of the 2,662 delegates and alternates, pose for a personal photograph, whisper a few private words and hand him a plastic campaign kit.

This is being organized with the efficiency of the assembly lines at the near-by meat-packing plant where the packers save everything but the pig's squeal.

A contact man has been assigned to each delegation to report to Nixon's regional chiefs what each is interested in. Just before Nixon visits each delegation, an advance man will test the political climate and brief Nixon on what he should say. After that the vice president will speak to each delegation for about ten minutes, answer a question or two, then pose with each delegate separately. The photos are expected to make for good publicity back home.

WARREN E. HEARNES (center), candidate for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State, and supporters enjoy a laugh at the $10-a-plate birthday dinner in his honor Saturday night at the Russell Hotel in Charleston. Some 230 Democrats from the Southeast Missouri area gathered to express support for the 37-year-old candidate, who has represented Mississippi County in the General Assembly since 1950. For the past two sessions he served as majority floor leader of the House of Representatives. From left to right are Joseph W. Martino, St. Louis, candidate for state treasurer; J. V. Conran, New Madrid, prosecuting attorney of New Madrid County; Hearnes; Congressman Paul C. Jones, candidate for re-election from the 10th Missouri district.

Five Seek Dem Nomination In Missouri Gubernatorial Race

JEFFERSON CITY AP Missouri has five men seeking the democratic nomination for Governor this year but it is more of a one-man run-away than a real contest.

Four years ago, Atty. Gen. John M. Dalton stepped aside because James T. Blair, then Lieutenant Governor, was far out in front in the governorship scramble.

But Dalton kept on campaigning and this time announced early that he would run for Governor. He built such a commanding lead that no politician of statewide stature would challenge him. Four other men filed, however, apparently in the hope that lightning might somehow strike.

They were James G. Cox, of Wellston in St. Louis County, George Roberts of near Westboro in Atchison county, Milton Morris of Kansas City and Roy E. Glidewell of Springfield.

Dalton, 59, is completing his second term as Attorney General. He was first elected in 1952 without carrying either St. Louis or Kansas City. Four years ago he won a second term and topped the ticket with a majority of 184,000 votes.

Dalton grew up in Nevada and Columbia and now lives at Kennett, in southeastern Missouri, where he has practiced law since 1937. He formerly was Marshal of the State Supreme Court. One of his brothers, S. P. Dalton, is now a Supreme Court Judge.

Dalton has campaigned hard throughout the state just as though he were engaged in a close contest.

Cox, 83, never has sought state office but several times has filed for St. Louis county offices. A retired painting contractor, he is a navy veteran of the Spanish-American war and a graduate of St. Mary's Seminary at Perryville.

He failed to return a questionnaire asking for his platform and views on state issues.

Roberts, 57 on July 18 ,is a farmer in Atchison County in northwestern Missouri and is serving his second term on the county court in a predominantly Republican county.

He is a member of many farm and other organizations and says he filed for Governor because "I feel that the job of Governor should be entrusted to someone who is independent and not the hand picked candidate of a small clique."

Morris, 48, is a Kansas City tavern owner running on a platform to legalize gambling in Missouri. He is seeking his first public office and says legalizing parimutuel betting on horse races and bingo would help the taxpayers by providing 7 million dollars a year in state revenue.

If Missouri legalized horse racing on a year-round basis, he predicted resorts would open up in the Ozarks and "Las Vegas could close up."

Glidewell, 68, ran third in a field of three for the governship nomination four years ago. He also once ran for the democratic nomination in the ninth Congressional district but was defeated. He formerly was City Attorney at Flat River and Reynolds County Prosecuting Attorney.

Glidewell has attacked the nation's missile program as asinine and says it is responsible for such natural catastrophes as floods, tornadoes and earthquakes.

"If God in His infinite wisdom had intended us mortals to hula dance on the moon," Glidewell says, "He would have made ft more accessible and perhaps have provided escalators."

3 Republicans In State Race For Governor

JEFFERSON CITY AP — Missouri Republicans had three men on the primary ballot for Governor but only two of them made statewide campaigns.

They were both state representatives — Rep. Edward G. Farmer, Jr., of Joplin and Rep. William B. Ewald of Kirkwood. The third man was harry C. Timmerman of Sllivan, a political unknown.

Jewett M. Fullerson, Liberty livestock dealer and auctioneer, filed for the nomination but withdrew because he said he didn't have time to make a state campaign.

In the campaign ,both Farmer and Ewald roundly criticized the record of the state democratic administration. Farmer went so far as to say that Former President Harry S. Truman, in refusing to attend the Democratic national convention and charging that the convention was rigged, had opened the way for a Republican state victory in November.

Farmer, 39, is a lawyer and a World War II veteran. He is completing his second term in the House of Representatives and formerly was assistant prosecuting attorney of Jasper County.

In his campaign he has advocated a new state university, state support for junior colleges, industrial development, expanded welfare programs and economy in government. He has opposed any increase in taxes and any plan to collect the state income tax by a withholding system.

Ewald, also a lawyer, will be 63 the day after the August 2 primary. He is completing his first term in the Missouri House. In past years he worked in the senatorial campaigns of Forrest C. Donnell and the governorship campaign of Murray E. Thompson.

He has advocated industrial and agriculturial, development and reorganization of the state government and its fiscal policies. One plank in his broad platform is "to develop the social, health and educational institutions of the state of Missouri for the maximum benefit of all the people." He has favored a tax withholding plan.

Timmerman, 45, is a native of St. Louis County and for the last 10 years has worked for McDonnell Aircraft. He served in Europe in World War II. He listed no platform and made no state-wide campaign.

In Sikeston it's 13 to 1.

Dear Dan: Everytime I'm on the telephone, even if only for a few minutes, my mother and 17-year-ol sister start discussing my friends and what I'm talking about right next to me. I'm afraid my friends can hear and it bothers me. I'm 14 and I wish I knew of something that would make them lay off.--Elephant Ears.

Dear Elephant Ears: Let's hope your mother and sister are only teasing you but even so, they're letting their manners droop slightly.

Dear Dan: Since I've been reading your column, I've become pretty well acquainted with the requirements governing a 13-year-old boy. To start with, I attend dances at the community center and I know I should be in before they end at midnight. The trouble is that the kids I go around with can stay out until about 12:45 a. m. and that makes me feel like two cents. The boys are all my age and they're allowed the extra time to walk their girls home. Should I ask my parents if I can have more time?

Another problem is what to do with an older sister who hits you and you know boys aren't supposed to hit girls? She's 15.

How do you ask your father for a bigger allowance or for some more money? -- Gotta Find Out.

Dear Gotta Find Out: I note you're from Brandon, Manitoba, Canada, but Canadian or American, I don't think any 13-year-old boy should be allowed out until 12:45 a. m. Neither do I think the operators of your community center dance are doing boys and girls of 13 a favor by allowing them to stay until the dance ends at midnight. Most important, I think parents who let their boys and girls stay out until nearly 1 a. m. are strickly irresponsible in that respect.

Your parents are most generous with the time they give you and don't push your luck.

I don't advocate a boy hitting his sister, younger or older, so the thing to do is let your father settle your boxing problem once and for all-I hope.

I don't know what sort of allowance you receive but rather than come up to your Dad with your hand out, why not offer to trade? Tell him you want to earn some extra money for the fair and would like to do some odd jobs for him. Wash the car, help with the housework and mow the lawn. These jobs may be all part of your regular schedule anyway but even so, your father will probably be more inclined to dig into his wallet if you at least make the offer to earn the extra money rather than just ask for it.

Dear Dan: How old should you be before you can start work as a car hop? I'm 13 and wonder if I'm too young. My father says I'm too young but I want to be one so badly.

Am I too old for a boy who's nearly 13. He's a really nice boy. Is it okay to sit by him at the show if he asks me to? If he wants to put his arm around me, would that be all right? Should I let him kiss me on the cheek? My friend and I had an argument about her height. She says she doesn't want a boy friend smaller than she is. Is a boy five feet tall too small for a girl who is nearly three inches taller? Thank you.--P. J. Blonde.

Dear P. J. Blonde: Your father is right about you car hop age. I think a girls should be at least 15 before starting that sort of work. As far as your other questions, You're not too old for a boy three or four months younger but you are too young for boys. Your three movie questions all have the same answer--No. A girl three inches taller than a boy is too tall for him, expecially when she's just 13.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE BIG KILL — After hours of stalking through the vast East Sikeston Congo, Standard Staffer David Blanton, Jr., bagged this prize trophy, a giant RHINOCEROS. With the huge hrino charging him in one of the thickly bushed sections of the Sikestonial flat, the fearless Blanton took keen aim and planted a 60-calliber Mangum masher just above the left eye of the fire-belching beast Returning to the Standard after his successful hunt, Blanton, described the terrain as "the best site he has ever seen for a subdivision safari." Blanton said the safari was made even more enjoyable because the area was "pretty thickly populated", and the inhabitants were intelligent and kind and good..not nearly the sort one would expect to find in a jungle. Blanton said he had pondered the idea of setting up safari tours through the Sikeston Congo, but abandoned the plan when he heard law enforcement officers had ordered such areas "cleaned up". For the people's sake, Blanton said he hoped the jungle was cleaned, but added that it will spoil an "excellant hunting site for big game." Fortunately, none of the children living in the Congo section of Sikeston have been harmed by wild animals..Yet. This picture was snapped alongside Marian Street in the subdivision. For the story of Blanton's hunt, and another picture of the subdivision safari, turn to Page ONE. — Staff Photo by Halbach-Kellett.

Standard Staffer Hunts–

et paper, and Mumbo carried disease. We were all set (on elephants), and away we went into the darkest reaches of the last Sikeston Congo.

The journey to the hunting grounds was uneventful, other than a brief stop off at the watering hole, where Earnest got watered and Arthur, cigarettes. Again we plunged into a revelry of African nature, Mululu was her name, and headed toward the jungles.

The first indications of lurking danger were two stray dogs, but they presented little problem as we were well out of their reach while riding on the elephants. Though the dogs gave us quite a scare, it was what happened next that was the event of the day. All at once there was a great deal of confusion in the rear of the train; Mayoomoo had stepped on some broken glass and dropped the toilet paper into a stream seething with aligators. We cried, but being the hardy picture of manhood that we were, this event left us undaunted, and, after wiping our eyes, we set out again.

Continuing our quest the safari moved on, and shortly came upon a village. How surprised we were to find such a civilization in a jungle domain. Why, there was plumbing, television, communications (the drum had been abolished long ago), and even a good many very fine people. The people called their village—a "subdivision", and said they were part of the citizens from Sikestonia. They havee apparently been forgotten by other memmbers of their tribe while living in the secluded Marion street section. We were indeed surprised, but the hunt was in our blood, so we pushed on.

Before long we met with another wild beast, a cow. Earnest cocked, his gun, and fired, dropping the big animal with one shot through the tail. This was exciting, wow! But the best was yet to come, a giant rhino.

As the safari was slowly winding through a cavern of strangling grass, we saw it come charging from the recesses of the highest weeds. Everyone ran for cover; some climbed the television tower, others hid in the deep grass, but I stood my ground, behind the group. The big beast thundered toward us, Arthur, armed only with his ukulele, Earnest with his barrel chest, and I with my trusty, plinko, super double trouble, blasto, triple magnum BB gun. Closer and closer it came, and I loaded my big blasto, Then I took aim, right between the eyes, and pulled the trigger. Bang! But I missed! No time now to reload my trusty, plinko, super double trouble, blasto, triple magnum BB gun, so we ran, Arthur with his ukulele between his legs, Earnest with his barrel chest now centered some six inches lower, and I with my legs. Pounding the turf inches ahead of the rhino we scurried for cover, and, with the hunter's luck, we were safe. This looked bad and we knew it, but the day was not lost, we were.

Then a quiet spread over the country side and smothered the jungles; nothing was to be heard but the whispering breeze that made its way through the tall grass some twelve feet above our heads. Then, the enchanting melody of the ukulele drifted into our ears — Arthur was safe; and here comes, why it's Earnest with a banana in one hand and a bottle of gin in the other; but where was the rhino?

With much fear in our hearts, and lumps in our throats we began the search for the missing rhino. We did not search long, because we soon found him, all 2000 pounds of him sprawling in the grass. It seems that the big beast had charged blind and stumbled over my typewriter, a thing I often do myself.

And so the day was finished, the Sikeston jungles were rid of one more avil beast, and we shining knights returned to camp. As the last rays were spreading over the roof of the jungle, and the rhino was cooking, we all set about concocting a good story for the folks at home — and so it goes.

The money is part of funds allocated Monday from federal highway aid funds by Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller.

Veep Nixon Awaits Nod–

chance that at the meeting, Nixon might be convinced that Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the GOP national chairman, might be the better entry in November's bitter struggle.

There was no certainty that Nixon would get the top nomination without at least the formality of a challenge.

Backers of Sen. Barry Goldwaer of Arizona, who has made himself a spokesman of the conservatives in the tradition of a Robert A. Taft, were uncertain whether to post his name for a roll call.

At best this would be only a protest gesture. It would be directed primarily at the foreordained adoption by the convention of a platform liberalized by Nixon with a vital assist from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Rockefeller had dallied with the idea of permitting his name to be submitted for the top nomination. The draft didn't blow, and Rockefeller formally stepped aside.

Pleased with the revised planks on national defense and civil rights he had helped Nixon drive through a recalcitrant platform committee, Rockefeller announced he would not permit his name to be offered. If it were offered without his permission he said, he would demand that it be erased from the roll call.

The New York governor personally made the motion by which his state delegation unanimously pledged its 96 votes to the vice president—a gesture of good will the Nixon forces relished because of its possible benefits in carrying New York in November.

Rockefeller said he acted after conferences with Nixon in which he found the nominee-to-be "actively espousing the principles and programs which I view as basic to the future of our nation and to the future of freedom."

Rockefeller's feeling about the platform was shared by Nixon, the vice president said through his press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, that the committee had done "an outstanding job," especially on a civil rights plank.

The plank was strengthened only after all-night work on reluctant delegates by Nixon's aides.

This provision, adopted over the protests of Southerners and some Westerners, included a section inveighing against any discrimination by stores against Negro customers.

also promised to use full executive powers to assure racial equality in federal employment and in all activities carried on under government contracts.

The Republican plank pledged creation of a commission on equal job opportunity to continue present federal efforts to end job discrimination on government contracts. It promised legislation to end discriminatory membership practices of some labor union locals, unless such practices are ended by the unions themselves. It pledged also development of a federal-state program to end discrimination in all employment areas.

HOUSING — Democrats promised to take action to end discrimination in federal housing programs.

The Republican plank pledged action to prohibit discrimination in housing constructed with aid of federal subsidies.

FEDERAL FACILITIES AND SERVICES — Democrats said the Justice Department should be empowered and directed to file civil injunction suits to prevent discrimination in all areas of community life, such as voting, schools, housing, jobs and public facilities.

The Republican plank promised to end discrimination in federal facilitites, to oppose use of federal funds for building segregated community facilities and to insure that public transportation and other government-authorized services are free of segregation. Democrats said such peaceful affairs are a signal to the nation to make good in guaranteeing civil rights.

The Republican plank reaffirmed the constitutional right to discrimination in private business establishments, and applauded businessmen who have abandoned discriminatory practices.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEDURE— Democrats said congressional procedure should be improved to permit majority rule.

The Republican plank pledged the party's best efforts to change congressional procedures that often make unattainable proper legislative action in the civil rights field.

eight years ago when he was nominated for his first term in the White House.

Now he was approaching the end of his second term and the crowd was saying a rousing farewell.

The crowd wanted Mamie to share it.

"Thank you, Mamie and Ike," banners everywhere proclaimed. "well done," others read.

The President delivered a fighting speech, hitting at critics and plugging for election of another Republican president. He was interrupted by applause 78 times.

He had a time of it even getting started. An ovation started the moment he was introduced by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. The President and the first lady walked arm in arm to the rostrum and the crowd went wild.

The band played—among other numbers, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," an Eisenhower campaign tune of 1952 and 1956—state banners were waved aloft, and the President waved back in his familiar gesture—arms outstretched high above his head.

Several times Mamie sat down. Several times the President laughingly got the smiling first lady back on her feet to share the tribute.

On his ride into town in an open car during the afternoon, Eisenhower got one of the most enthusiastic welcomes he has ever received.

When the six-mile tour had ended, the President sat in his Blackstone Hotel suite and declared it was an astonishing reception.

"It was one of the finest crowds that I have ever seen," said the man who has been lionized in Britain, France, India, Korea—and in every section of the United States.

Ike Defends Programs–

uct—the sum of all the goods and services produced in the nation—Eisenhower said "we are fed a great deal of information—and much more of misinformation.

'The interesting fact is that in these past seven and a half years the annual gross national product has increased by one hundred billion dollars—or 25 per cent.

"During the almost eight-year duration of the prior, Democratic administration, the gross national product actually declined in every single peacetime year, save one."

Eisenhower defended his long struggle against inflation, which critics have said has blinded him to more pressing problems.

"In the face of all the efforts of the reckless spenders to thwart the administration, a budgetary surplus has been achieved, fiscal responsibility maintained, and confidence restored," he said.

In the military field, Eisenhower said when he came to office his administration had to start almost from scratch in the field of ballistic missiles, and in his term has developed a varied arsenal of these powerful new weapons.

CHIEF OF POLICE WARNS CUT THE WEEDS OR YOU MAY GET PROSECUTED

Chief of Police Arthur Bruce issues a warning that owners of lots where the weeds have been allowed to grow must either cut the weeds or have them cut.

Quite a number of lot owners have been notified to cut the weeds and some of them have done so while others have apparently just ignored the warning and let the weeds keep on growing.

Unless the weeds are cut, says the chief, there will be no more notices but officers may be around with a summons to city court to tell the judge how come. Punishment for violation of the weed cutting ordinance could be as much as a $100 fine.

Chief Bruce said today that the owner of overgrown lots along Marian street in east Sikeston, told him today that the subdivision sites will be cut August 1.

Seasonal Factors Boost June Non-Ag Employment

JEFFERSON CITY — Favorable seasonal factors have pushed Missment to 1,315,400 at mid-June, a gain of some 9,600 jobs from mid-May, the Missouri Division of Employment Security reported today.

Agency Director J. E. Taylor said this figure reflects a loss of 4,400 jobs from a year ago at this time. Reason for the decline, he added, is primarily due to less construction activity and job losses in wholesale and retail trade.

Manufacturing gained 4,600 jobs during the thirty-day period, Mr. Taylor noted, with nondurable goods registering an increase of 2,200. Food and kindred products accounted for most of the current increase.

Durable goods manufacturing gained 2,400 workers with losses in stone, clay and glass products and primary metals being offset by a 2,500 job increase in transportation equipment for the thirty-day period.

Non-manufacturing industries added 5,000 workers from mid-May to mid-June with gains recorded in trade and finance industries. Government employment declined due to layoff of census workers and reduced school employment during the vacation period.

Weekly earnings for Missouri's wage and salary workers rose from 69 cents from $85.15 in May to $87.84 in June as result of a 0.3 an hour increase in the length of the work week to 39.5 hours.

Hourly earnings reached $2.23 per hour. That figure is 9 cents per hour higher than the year ago level, the Director's report concluded.

BROTHER BOB PATCHES POLITICAL TIES WHILE KENNEDY TAKES A REST

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, took a day off today while his campaign manager brother Robert meets in New York with wrangling pro-Kennedy party leaders of that pivotal state.

The senator scheduled no appointments. He planned some boating and a lot of rest at his summer home, where his vacation up to now has featured more high-powered work than relaxation.

Kennedy said his brother would confer during the day with Michael H. Prendergast, New York state Democratic chairman, on plans to bring rival New York factions into some unified effort in the November election campaign.

Prendergast has voiced vigorous protest against Kennedy's efforts to create a New York branch of "Citizens for Kennedy" as an organization through which independent voters, dissident Democrats and even disgruntled Republicans could work for the Democratic ticket.

Robert Kennedy has been assigned to talk with various factional leaders. The senator said he felt pretty sure his brother would work out something with them before returning here Friday.

'The Senator says he has been keeping an eye, when he feels like it, on television broadcasts from the Republican National Convention. He said Tuesday he hoped the GOP would write a platform plank on civil rights "as clear and effective as ours."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, new Democratic national chairman, flies here Thursday for strategy talks with Kennedy.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the vice presidential nominee, is due to arrive Friday for a day of conferences on plans for the campaign Kennedy will launch with a speech in Hawaii around Sept. 1.

Kennedy has yet to spell out the legislative program he plans to offer when Congress reconvenes Aug. 8. This is one of the major problems to be considered in his talk with Johnson.

LONG-AWAITED HOUR IS NEAR FOR NOMINATION OF VICE-PREXY NIXON

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon today reaches the next to last major milestone in his long campaign to become President of the United States.

By the time he goes to bed tonight, the vice president should be the Republican nominee for this office, quite probably by acclamation and certainly with no serious opposition.

Ahead of him will lie three months of arduous work and campaigning leading up to the day of decision, Nov. 8. He has repeatedly pledged to the national convention delegates this week his fight will be as unremitting as any in the nation's political history.

Nixon told one delegation "I may have some inadequacies, but I can promise you this—I will work as no one has ever worked before to try to lead you to victory."

His admirers insist he has been in training for the nation's highest office almost from the day he stepped into the vice presidency, jan. 20, 1953.

Nixon yielded the convention spotlight Tuesday to his chief, President Eisenhower who tapped the youthful Californian as his running mate eight years ago this month in Chicago.

But Eisenhower flies on to Denver today, leaving the star role entirely to Nixon.

The vice president appeared to have a firm grasp on all levers of power in the convention.

He settled one of his two key problems Tuesday, the writing of an acceptable platform, and laid his plans for the solution of the other, selection of a running mate who would add maximum strength to the ticket.

It was evident in the Nixon camp that the civil rights plank finally worked out for the platform did not meet all the specifications the vice president would have considered ideal.

But he sent word he felt the platform committee had done an "outstanding job" on civil rights and all other planks. His aides made it clear there was no thought of a floor fight to detract from tonight's presidential nomination which is to follow adoption of the platform.

On the No. 2 ticket spot, Nixon was keeping mum.

The vice president in a whirl of activity yesterday visited with 35 of the state delegations.
